

Bio

John DenBoer, Ph.D., is a full-time, Licensed Psychologist/Clinical Neuropsychologist and Sports Psychologist. He conducts neuropsychological assessment to help detect in the diagnostic classification and rehabilitation of brain disorders, specializing in traumatic brain injury (TBI) and dementia. He was granted an M.A. from The University of Colorado at Colorado Springs and completed his Ph.D. work from The University of Montana. He completed his internship training through the VA Boston Healthcare System (where he held a dual academic appointment at Harvard Medical School and Boston University School of Medicine) and conducted his postdoctoral training at Barrow Neurological Institute (Phoenix, AZ). He has published extensively on diverse topics in Clinical Neuropsychology and has been an expert speaker at many local, national, and international conferences. He currently works at the Nicholls Group (Scottsdale, AZ), where he specializes in Adult Neuropsychology, primarily in the areas of sports concussion and dementia. He also is involved in medico-legal consultation.

In addition to his neuropsychology activities, Dr. DenBoer works as a Sports Psychologist. He is the Founder and Director of Mental Edge Sports Psychology (www.mentaledgetennis.com), which specializes in providing peak performance services to competitive athletes, entertainers, and professionals. In addition to conducting individual and group mental coaching sessions, Dr. DenBoer is a specialist in the development of mindlabs for high-level competitive athletes.